Notes for JAMES GEORGE ANDARY:

Before and after WWII, James was a grocer at several locations in Detroit, Michigan.

During WWII James George Andary was in the European Theatre in the U.S. Army in the field artillery. His battalion was the first to cross the Siegfried Line. They also liberated Dachau Prison. He earned a purple heart and the bronze star.

While James served in the U.S. Army, Anne and their oldest child (Joanne) lived with her parents in their home in Detroit. The war ended and James returned in December of 1945 and lived with Joanne's parents until March of 1946. They bought a home at Crane and Goethe in Detroit at that time. Four more children (James, Christine, Marie & Raymond) were born to them during the eleven years they lived there. The family belonged to St. Edward's Catholic parish which also had a school that the three eldest children (Joanne, James & Christine) attended. Then the family moved to a home at Bishop & Harper in Detroit which was near St. Matthew's Catholic Parish. The two youngest children (Marie & Raymond) attended St. Matthew's school at this time. Joanne, Christine & Marie went on to graduate from Dominican High School in Detroit, while James graduated from Austin Preparatory School in Detroit. Raymond graduated from Notre Dame High School in Harper Woods, Michigan.

James passed away in 1967. In November of 1995, his sister Anne Andary Doran established the James George Andary Memorial Scholarship Fund at the University of Detroit High School.
